

Available Resources: Directories

Professional Directories. Include directories for people such as doctors and lawyers.

City Directory. City directories help locate where and when a person lived. A city directory can guide one to other records such as censuses, death and probate records, naturalization records, land records, and church records.

Telephone Directory. Most people are familiar with the common telephone directory; they contain addresses and phone numbers. These directories can be quite helpful in locating living relatives or possible relatives.
